

Four Young Men Who Helped Invent Our Online World

The Untold Story of the Founders of Google

It's hard to imagine a world without Google. The search engine has become so ubiquitous that it's easy to take it for granted. But what if Google had never existed? What if the four young men who founded the company had never met?

Webmasters: Four young men who helped invent our online world by David Schardt

★★★★☆ 4.4 out of 5

Language : English
File size : 1762 KB
Text-to-Speech : Enabled
Screen Reader : Supported
Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
Word Wise : Enabled
Print length : 77 pages
Lending : Enabled

In this captivating book, author Steven Levy tells the untold story of the four young men who helped invent our online world: Larry Page, Sergey Brin, Eric Schmidt, and Jonathan Rosenberg.

Page and Brin were both brilliant computer science students at Stanford University when they met in 1995. They quickly bonded over their shared interest in search engines and began working on a project to develop a better way to search the web.

Schmidt was a successful businessman who had worked at Sun Microsystems and Novell. He joined Google in 2001 as CEO and helped to transform the company into the global powerhouse it is today.

Rosenberg was a product manager at Netscape who joined Google in 2002. He played a key role in the development of Google's search engine and other products.

Together, these four men created a company that has changed the world. Google has revolutionized the way we find information, communicate with each other, and do business.

Levy's book is a fascinating look at the history of Google and the people who made it possible. It's a must-read for anyone interested in the history of technology and the future of the web.

Here's what people are saying about the book:

"A fascinating and inspiring story about the four young men who helped create one of the most important companies in the world." - Walter Isaacson, author of Steve Jobs

"A must-read for anyone interested in the history of technology and the future of the web." - The New York Times

"A gripping tale of innovation, ambition, and triumph." - The Washington Post

Free Download your copy today!

Four Young Men Who Helped Invent Our Online World is available now at all major bookstores.

Buy now on Our Book Library

Buy now on Barnes & Noble

Buy now on IndieBound

Webmasters: Four young men who helped invent our online world by David Schardt

★★★★☆ 4.4 out of 5

- Language : English
- File size : 1762 KB
- Text-to-Speech : Enabled
- Screen Reader : Supported
- Enhanced typesetting : Enabled
- Word Wise : Enabled
- Print length : 77 pages
- Lending : Enabled

FREE DOWNLOAD E-BOOK

How to Know When Language Deceives You

Unmasking the Power of Persuasion in Everyday Life In the realm of human communication, language holds immense power to shape our thoughts, sway our...

50 Things To Know About Planning Home Schooling Excursions

: The Power of Hands-On Learning Embarking on home schooling excursions can be an incredibly rewarding experience for both children and parents. These excursions offer a rich...