

John Rockefeller On Making Money: The Secrets of the World's Richest Man

John D. Rockefeller was an American industrialist and philanthropist who founded the Standard Oil Company. He was the richest man in the world during the late 19th and early 20th centuries, and his wealth was estimated to be over $300 billion in today's dollars.

Rockefeller was a devout Christian, and he believed that wealth was a gift from God. He also believed that it was his responsibility to use his wealth to help others. He donated millions of dollars to charities, and he founded the Rockefeller Foundation, which is one of the largest philanthropic organizations in the world.

Rockefeller was a brilliant businessman, and he had a keen eye for detail. He was also a shrewd negotiator, and he was able to acquire a number of businesses at bargain prices.

In his book, "John Rockefeller On Making Money," Rockefeller shares his secrets for success. He explains how he built his fortune, and he offers advice on how to make money in today's world.

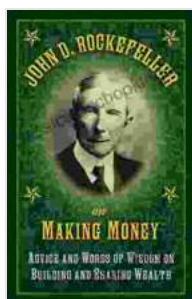

Here are some of the key insights from Rockefeller's book:

- Set clear goals and objectives. Rockefeller knew exactly what he wanted to achieve, and he set clear goals for himself. He also developed a plan to achieve those goals.
- Be persistent and never give up. Rockefeller faced many challenges on his way to success, but he never gave up. He was persistent in his efforts, and he eventually achieved his goals.
- Be honest and ethical. Rockefeller believed that honesty and integrity were essential for success. He always dealt with people fairly, and he never took advantage of others.
- Be generous with your time and money. Rockefeller believed that it was important to give back to the community. He donated millions of dollars to charities, and he founded the Rockefeller Foundation.

Rockefeller's advice is timeless, and it can help anyone achieve success in business. If you are looking to make money, I highly recommend reading "John Rockefeller On Making Money."
